COSHOCTON HIGH WINS GAME FROM DENNISON SQUAD

Locals Get Revenge For the Drubbing They Received at Dennison

The Coshocton Central high school basketball team turned the tables on the Dennison high aggregation Friday night at the Central gym and won from the visitors by the score of 26 to 18. The C. H. S. outfit was defeated by Dennison the early part of this season by a lopsided score.

Callahan led the attack on the visitors in the start of the game by his clever basket shooting and classy playing. Brode and Wagner, the two local guards, broke up the Dennison pass work continuously. The guarding of Holmes, Brode and Wagner in last night's contest was the best of the season. These boys made the best showing of any guards that have played on the Central gym this season. Their work enabled the locals to cop the victory.

Callahan, Hunt, Senter and Brode were continuously breaking up the visitors' clever team work by tormenting the mat every play of the game. On the other hand, Miller and Wilson were the human dynamos of the Dennison aggregation. Wilson, who was the tallest man on either team, was closely guarded by Hunt, who was after the "big boy" from the beginning of the game. Miller, one of the fastest men on the opposing quintet, was held to one basket by the clever playing of Holmes.

Callahan and Hunt led the Coshocton aggregation in securing baskets with 5 each.

The next game according to schedule will be played between Coshocton high and Newark high at the Central gym, February 5.

As a preliminary to the main attraction in last night's game, the Seniors and Sophomores played, the game ending with the score 18 to 15 in favor of the former.

The goal shooting of Bretzins of the Sophomores was the main feature of the game. He secured his five baskets from the middle of the floor, with ease and accuracy. —Haskins was the (Continued on Page Six)

MRS. MARY QUINLAN DIES LATE FRIDAY FOLLOWING STROKE

Death following a three weeks' illness from apoplexy came to Mrs. Mary E. Quinlan at her home at 948 Chestnut, Friday evening at 6:15 o'clock. Mrs. Quinlan had been confined to her bed since Sunday January 9, in a critical condition. She had never regained consciousness since the day she was stricken.

Mary Ellen Cartan was born in Coshocton, September 9, 1855, and with the exception of two years she lived in Indiana she spent her entire life in this city.

On August 27, 1873 Miss Cartan married William J. Quinlan, who preceded her to the grave 21 years ago. To this union eight children were born, five of whom survive. They are: Thomas, Sr., Mainst and Margaret, James, Mary and William all of the late home.

Mrs. Quinlan was a good mother. She was a woman who enjoyed giving to those who were in need. She will be kindly remembered for her charity, never refusing aid and sympathy in time of trouble.

All her life, Mrs. Quinlan was a devoted Catholic. She was a member of the local Sacred Heart church.

Besides the children, Mrs. Quinlan is survived by one sister, Mrs. Kate Martin and one brother, James Cartan both of Coshocton.

The funeral services will be held Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the Sacred Heart church.

Burial will be made in Oak Ridge.

CITY'S POPULATION IS ESTIMATED AT 11,373 FROM DATA

There are 2,142 pupils enrolled in the Coshocton public schools at the present time according to the announcement of Supt. O. B. Clifton. At this time last year there were only 2,024 pupils enrolled or 118 less than enrolled last year.

According to the census figures for 1920 the population of Coshocton was 10,847, with a school enrollment of 2,024, which makes the entire population approximately 5.31 times the school enrollment. Taking the present school enrollment at 2,142, the population of the city can be estimated at approximately 11,373 at the present time or an average of about 5 per cent over the figures given in the 1920 census.

War-Destroyed French Railroads, All Restored

EVERY mile of the 1800 miles of French railroads destroyed during the war has been restored. This is perhaps one of the most remarkable accomplishments in the whole story of French reconstruction. Daily car loadings of French railroads have increased from an average of 20,000 cars a day in May to 36,000 a day in the Autumn months. The rehabilitation of the railroads has been aided by the rapid restoration of France's steel industry. Out of 50 blast furnaces destroyed, 37 have been lighted, and of 844 metal working plants 736 have resumed production. Sixty-two per cent of the copper and bronze factories damaged or destroyed are working to full or partial capacity.

CONTEMPT CHARGES

Former Judge Asks Permit to Tote a Pistol; He Was Shot at

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Jan. 29.—Judge James Damron, one of the leading attorneys for the prosecution in the Matewan tragedy had an "Ad" in the paper today.

It was an application for a permit to carry a pistol.

As court convened today for the fourth day of the great gun battle trial, that was the chief item of conversation in the court room.

Judge Damron resigned from the circuit bench last November. During his term he issued scores of pistol licenses, but just before he resigned he had them all revoked.

Recently he was shot in the street by a man figuring in a case Damron had tried.

Applications of this sort have to appear in the local papers for a period before being passed on by Judge Robert D. Bailey, who is trying the case of the twenty-one men charged with the murder of Albert Felts.

Sid Hatfield and Charles Kiser, both defendants in the present trial, were cited today to answer contempt charges.

They are accused of having attempted to persuade miners to quit work, in violation of a recent injunction, forbidding interference with coal mine operations.

A congressional investigation of the coal strike conditions in Mingo-co will be asked in Washington by the United Mine Workers of America, local headquarters of that organization learned today.

National president, John L. Lewis and National Secretary and Treasurer, William Green, left Indianapolis last night for Washington to file a petition to that effect with congress.

Examination of venemore was resumed. Progress was slow.

By agreement of court and counsel all miners who have taken the places of strikers will be barred from jury duty, just as are union miners and coal operators.

BROT BACK FROM CIRCLEVILLE TO SETTLE A CHARGE

Patrolman George Freteague, brot Robert Bales from Circleville, Friday on a charge of stealing a watch from his cousin, Ophie Bales of Coshocton last September.

According to the charges made by Ophie Bales, Robert Bales stole the watch from him, while visiting at his home, later selling the watch and leaving town.

Bales found a local Greek who knew of the sale of the watch, but did not know where the buyer could be located.

A satisfactory settlement of the deal was made out of court and Robert Bales was released.

WANTED: AN ORGANIZER

The employment service of the Department of Labor guesses—for, as is readily shown, all such estimates are partly guess-work—that since January, 1920, the number of persons employed in industry has decreased from 9,402,000 to 6,070,648. As the director of the employment service points out, this does not mean that 3,473,466 persons are now out of work, for some may have found employment in occupations not classed as industrial.

Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, believes that the total number of the unemployed is now between four million and five million. The federal government, which has such exact means of ascertaining the condition of the crops, has no equivalent machinery for reporting on the condition of industry, and can neither confirm nor disprove Mr. Morrison's statement.

But irrespective of how many men are now actually without work it is undoubtedly true that the industrial army is approximately two-thirds of what it was a year ago. As the product must fluctuate roughly with the number of people and factories at work, the current output must also be approximately two-thirds of what it was a year ago. Another way of putting it is that our industrial organization demands a reserve of at least one-third of its active army, which it needs at certain periods but cannot use at others.

But this reserve has no claim against industry except through wages. When it is denied employment it is, of course, denied wages. Being denied wages its purchasing power is lost or diminished. The unemployed need food, but there is 19 per cent. of unemployment in the food industries; they need clothes, but there is 35 per cent. of unemployment in the textile industries; they need shoes, but there is 35 per cent. of unemployment in the leather industry; they must have shelter, but there is from 19 to 35 per cent. of unemployment in the building and house-furnishings industries, intensifying an already acute shortage.

If four million people are out of work the immediate demand for goods is diminished, not by the whole amount of their wages, for they must still live, but by a very considerable amount. And this decline in the demand for goods aggravates the very conditions which cause unemployment. The cycle of low wages, unemployment, decreased demand for goods, followed by more unemployment and a still further increase in demand, is as vicious as the cycle of full employment, high wages, high prices, and higher wages, of which we were hearing a year ago.

There is no sure cure for fluctuations in the demand for goods. Something can be done, however, to smooth out the fluctuations in the production of goods. Some seasonal industries can be run all the year. Industries that are over-manned and over-equipped can be scaled down, as Mr. Hoover has suggested the bituminous coal industry should be, and this release of men and capital can find outlet in new and underdeveloped industries. The problem would not be insoluble for the managerial ability which produced the Standard Oil or the United States Steel Corporation, or for that higher type which managed the relief of Belgium. Unless the signs fail this must be the next great invention, capping and making more fruitful all those that have preceded it.

THE FEUD IN MINGO COUNTY

Since the opening of the industrial war in West Virginia, much has been said on the side of the United Mine Workers, but practically nothing on the side of the coal operators. The reason is simpler than might be supposed. There is nothing to be said on the side of the operators which would look well in print, whereas the miners' case needs only to be presented to convince.

Ellis Searles of the Mine Workers' Journal has stated that case once more. He may have exaggerated here and there, as is usual with advocates, yet there is no flaw in his argument. He will not be answered, cannot be answered, because his opponents know better than to air the logic they use privately in justification of their methods in dealing with the unions.

These methods have been discussed before and are fairly well known. They are worth remembering, for they are typical of the worst phase of capitalistic control. The bituminous region of West Virginia has been administered as tho it were an earldom in the time of the Plantagenets. The operators own the land, the houses, and a large proportion of the government, and they have no scruples about employing every means in their power to put the unions out and keep them out.

Union men and union speakers are forcibly prevented from entering towns and territories where they have not already built up impregnable organizations. Gunmen are employed in large numbers for this purpose, and sheriffs' offices (in such towns as Logan) are veritably armed camps of men pledged to keep the premises clear of all who are adjudged undesirable by the mine-owners and superintendents.

In such a vicinity the law is openly broken every day; if it were not the unions would triumph over night. But an easier and less dangerous means of making organization difficult is economic pressure, which can be applied thru discharge, eviction, or the refusal of credit. The companies run the stores and own the houses thruout the region, and the only work to be had is in the mines. The trouble in Mingo-co began when all union men were dismissed and their families turned out to find shelter where they could.

This, unlike the fortification of Logan, is legal. Men who have annoyed the companies by joining the United Mine Workers have no recourse when they are sent packing, neither have their families a right to company-owned houses. But when it is remembered that these tactics are employed to prevent the spread of unionism, and that unionism is feared only because it gives the miner an opportunity to bargain on more nearly equal terms with his master, the operators' point of view is seen to be peculiarly ruthless and anti-social.

He is willing to ruin the communities in his power rather than abandon his absolute dictatorship in matters of wages and hours.

New York Day-By-Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Manhattan, warmth. And sometimes they come back but as a rule they remain.

Greenwich Village has a new poet, his name is Praxiteles Smith and he has bangs and wears horn-rimmed glasses and, Gosh, but he's soulful. He first appeared in the favor of the short haired circles when he wrote his "To a Mad Rump" which adorned the menu of the Whistling Cow. Now it is announced that he is to start a new magazine to be called "The Great Light." He will feed starved brains with pedantic nutriment.

The curtailing of productions is not confined alone to the movie field. Not in the memory of the living first nighter has the Rialto gone a week without an opening. Last week not a new show opened on Broadway. A few weeks ago it was impossible to get a theatre for a new production, but now there are any number to be rented. People are going to the theatre but they refuse to attend the clap-trap performances at the high prices.

The tale is old among the medical fraternity of the surgeon whose nerveless hand made during strokes before spell bound clinics and who had his stone mansion at Newport and vast Westchester estate. And yet one night, twitching and hollow eyed, he was taken out of an all night Tenth Avenue cafe to a waiting patrol because he could not pay a 20 cent check. He was on Blackwell's Island for three months without a visitor.

The cross streets of the Forties are filled with men whose names illuminated theatre programs of another year. They cringe at the doors of the movie exchanges hoping for some extra bit. A magazine illustrator is now a doorman at Madison Avenue club where once he lived. Most of the members he knew and had dined with them over the nightly Scotch and Soda but few recognize him now.

Longacre Square has become accustomed to the occasional visits of the powerful figure, collarless and unkempt, who frequently comes out of a side street at midnight with uncertain steps. The shadow boxes with imaginary faces mumbles and cackles to himself and is finally chased away by a sympathetic traffic officer. The man was once a mighty boxer and has battled before crowned heads. Now he lives over his past in drug dreams.

New York in its mad scramble for success has no time for failure. Only the bells of the Bowery pawn shops ring a welcome to the down and outer. Sooner or later they go to the Museum, where they find food and scrambling for pie, and still more pie prices. There is one balm in the situation. The ticket gouger has fallen upon lean days. Many have quit the speculating field perhaps for some more remunerative form of highway robbery.

THE JOLLIER

If necessity is the mother of invention, laziness must be the stepfather.

After March 4 one of the interesting old games revived will be postoffice.

The modern girl is kept too busy having a good time to give any attention to a hope chest.

With hides so cheap, about the only good reason for skinning an animal is to get at the beef.

Police in the large cities appear to find it easier to drive the crooks out than to capture them.

Love is not only blind, but it still clings to the idea that two can live as cheaply as one.

The Russians either will or will not start a campaign in the spring to conquer Europe for bolshevism.

There are still a few fools who prate about the glories of war, in spite of the present day misery of Europe.

The person with a little money in the bank is the one who can get the most satisfaction out of falling prices.

The person who is chronically hard up generally finds that pawns play an important part in his game of life.

Even a cross-eyed man has no difficulty in finding trouble these days if he goes out to look for it.

There are few persons who would find the journey of life interesting without a lot of stop-over privileges.

Girl On Way to Marriage Altar Foils 2 Bandits

WARREN, Jan. 29.—Highwaymen hold no terrors for Miss Esther Haynes when they stand between her and a marriage ceremony. This was demonstrated when two highwaymen stopped her while she was enroute here from Newton Falls in an auto and asked her:

"Would you object giving us what you have in that purse?" "Indeed I do, and furthermore I haven't time to stop here and argue the matter with you. I'm going to Warren to be married and my car just won't wait, so good bye," replied Miss Haynes as she put on full power and dashed away to the bewilderment of the bandits.

Miss Haynes was married on schedule time to Harold Addendell by Rev. Bush of the Lutheran church.

Custer Wolf, Animal "Master Criminal," is Killed After 9 Years

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—After exacting $25,000 tribute in live stock during the nine years he has cunningly eluded scores of hunters, the "Custer wolf," known as the master criminal of the animal world, has at last been killed.

The death of "the cruellest, the most sagacious, the most successful animal outlaw" the range country has ever known, was announced with a sigh of relief by the department of agriculture today. H. P. Williams, the department's best hunter and deadliest shot, sent a bullet crashing thru the animal's brain after trailing it seven months thru the country adjacent to Custer, N. D.

For nine years the Custer wolf struck terror to the hearts of ranchers in that section. Many credited the story that it was not merely a wolf, but a monstrosity of nature, half wolf and half mountain lion, possessing the cruelty of both and the craftiness of Mephistopheles.

Women Jurors Cannot Cross Their Legs; So Court Orders Curtain

SPRINGFIELD, Jan. 29.—Common Pleas Judge Geiger today promised women members of the jury that he would have a curtain erected along the front of the jury box, at least waist high. Women jurors complained that it was impossible for them to relieve the monotony of single sitting position by occasionally crossing their legs.

They occupy elevated positions in the courtroom and even with their legs uncrossed the ankle display is noticeable.

Under Judge Geiger's new plan for "ankle curtains" the men and women jurors may be equally comfortable, and the attorneys may give the case at hand their undivided attention.

Strive To Have Healthy Skin

Next time you are in a gathering of women note the different conditions apparent in complexion. You will see some filled with blackheads, some dry and rough, some smooth and glossy, some smeared with rouge, some streaked with heavy metallic powders and once in a while you will see one that is a demonstration of intelligence from every point of view. The color is rosy, the skin is clear and smooth, the pores are small and open, the powder does not show on the firm vigorous skin. Every woman can have a good complexion if she will only use a little discretion. If you would acquire real beauty, the beauty of perfect health, you must replenish your worn-out nerves with lecithin. Nature's own nerve restorer, and put into your blood the invigorating iron which Nature intended it to have for health. Old Controversy Over Birthday of McKinley is Again Set at Rest

CANTON, Jan. 29—Close friends and former neighbors of President William McKinley, whose home was in this city, today scouted stories that the martyred president was born on Feb. 26 instead of January 29, the date generally observed.

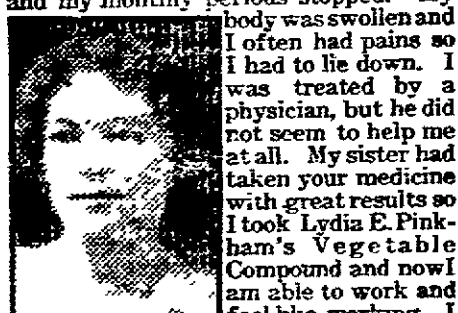

They said the controversy over the date of his birth had come up before and had resulted from a typographical error made in the congressional directory years ago. The date as recorded on the McKinley mausoleum here, where rest the remains of the entire McKinley family, is Jan. 29. This date, it was pointed out, was verified at the time of the issuance of the official sketch of McKinley sent out by the McKinley Memorial Association.

TWO SISTERS GET HELP

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for what it did for Them

Hagerstown, Md.—"I was overworked and my monthly periods stopped. My body was swollen and I often had pains so I had to lie down. I was treated by a physician, but he did not seem to help me at all. My sister had taken your medicine with great results so I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now I am able to work and feel like working. I have been recommending your medicine to my friends, and you are welcome to use my testimonial for I can never praise your medicine enough for what it has done for me."

R. R. J. Hagerstown, Md.
Women will tax their powers of endurance to the limit before giving up, and it is then some womanly ailment develops and they have to give up entirely. When a woman suffers from such symptoms as irregularity, headaches, backaches, bearing-down pains, inflammation, nervousness and "the blues," it is well for her to profit by Mrs. Carbaugh's experience and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has restored multitudes of women suffering from just such ailments.

OHIO FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

By Mrs. George Elliott McCormick, Director of Press

Scholarship Chairman's Report. "Let other girls who need assistance. It would seem that clubwomen are not familiar with the history of the loan scholarship fund. For this reason a brief survey of the good accomplished through it may tend to arouse that interest to which the project is entitled. At the state convention at Oberlin in 1910, the chairman of the committee on education, Mrs. Anton H. Smith, Cleveland, presented a plan for the creation of a loan scholarship fund. The federation gave its assent and at the 1911 Cleveland convention the committee reported that a loan scholarship fund had been established and financial assistance was asked to place it on a working basis. The plan was to have each clubwoman contribute five cents per annum for eight years, thus creating, it was then figured, a sum of $5,000. But at the end of the eight-year period the entire amount was not raised, due to the failure of many clubs to contribute. However, as the splendid work accomplished through this loan scholarship fund was so evident, and as the amount per capita was so small, it was decided by the state federation executive board in 1919 to make this contribution a yearly assessment. At the silver anniversary convention in Cleveland an offering of $1,072 was made to the fund.

It is interesting to know since the fund was established eight girls have received and repaid their loans before October, 1919. One repaid this year. Five are repaying and two more will begin repaying this year. No interest is ever charged. The state federation has eleven girls in college this year, one of them being blind. All are preparing to make their own way through life. The blind girl has entered her college work with as much zeal and pleasure as one who can see. One girl, to whom a loan had been made, died. Her loan, as all loans now was protected by a life insurance policy.

Letters from girls receiving help from the federation's loan scholarship fund are full of gratitude to clubwomen for giving them assistance, and some of the girls are now offering to contribute to this fund to help

When the snow is on the ground clubwomen ought never to forget the birds. A few little crumbs from every home will save thousands of our little feathered friends from perishing.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

BROKEN BARS

By SYLVIA D. BELL

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The golden sunlight of June rested invitingly on the cross-stitch motto, "God Bless Our Home," which hung above the door of the Lane's sitting room. Attracted by the sunlight Mary had been gazing at the motto for several minutes, thinking in her childish mind how typical it was of the room itself.

Mary was extremely fond of pretty things. She worshipped beauty in every form, lavished affection on all living things and craved it in return. Yet, paradoxical as it may seem, she was the child of stern, unsmiling parents. Consequently, they had never understood her, and had regarded her as a sort of an anomaly. They were sorely tried one day when she cried herself to sleep because they refused to get her a dress with pink roses in it. They tried in vain to crush this spirit of worldliness, as they termed it.

In this moment of meditation, bitter thoughts crowded into Mary's mind. She reviewed the episode that was the cause of her present punishment. The night before, in the hope of making herself pretty, she had done up her straight bangs in curl papers.

Joyfully she went to bed, dreamed dreams of pretty faces surrounded by curls.

In the morning her mother, busy about breakfast, did not notice the curls, but after the customary reading from the Bible, her father leveled his eyes straight on Mary and the precise brown ringlets on her forehead. With reddening cheeks she heard him say, "Mary shall do thirty examples in arithmetic and show them to me before she goes to school this morning, as a punishment for lapsing into worldliness."

Moved by a spirit of rebellion, she determined not to do them. She would deceive him!

She remembered that not long ago she had undergone the self-same punishment and had saved the paper with the examples on it, and this she would show to him. Furthermore, she would read her book of fairy tales during the time she was supposed to be doing the examples.

The story book was very dear to Mary's heart, and with tender fingers she took it from the drawer where she had hidden it; close beside it was a candy box with pink roses on it, and lifting the cover, she took out several pieces of ribbon, then a bottle of perfume. All were presents from her friends, which she kept from her mother's sight, knowing full well that she would call them worldly.

Dear, innocent treasures! Mary prized them above all else in the world.

Urged on by a rebellious feeling, she decided not to go to school that day. Instead, she would spend the day in the woods. She always took her lunch to school, so her folks would not miss her, she knew. If they should question her, she would lie to them. Yes, she would lie and be wicked!

So handling her father the bogus arithmetic paper, she took her lunch and started. The clear morning air filled her with an exquisite feeling of joy. Always hedged in by facts, she now let her imagination run riot. Lying there in the cool, sweet grass, she caught sight of an old boat, and her fanciful mind immediately converted it with "The Lady of Shalott," which she had recently read at school. She suddenly decided to play that she was the "Lady of Shalott," and with a pencil from her school box roughly traced the words "The Lady of Shalott" on the boat. She pushed off from the shore and, lying in the bottom of the boat, she sang softly to herself, as did the lady of the poem and "floated down to Camelot."

A rough, grating sound came to Mary's ears, and she sat bolt upright to see what was the matter. The boat had run against some rocks, which had punctured a hole in the bottom, and it was rapidly filling with water. Mary called lustily for help, and then everything went black before her.

The next thing she knew she was in a room where everything was white; flowers nodded to her from a table beside the bed, and in the distance she heard soft music. A blond young person all dressed in white entered the room, and told her that Mary's boat, having run aground, had been pulled out and was now in the harbor. Mary's heart thrilled at the news, and she immediately turned to her father and mother, who were standing by her bed, and she said, "I was in heaven and the blond young person was an angel."

Then she heard familiar voices—her father and mother's. They were saying something about "rescued from drowning," and then it all came back to Mary. But somehow things were changed. First her mother would kiss her and then her father, and they carried her and patted her cheeks, and her mother whispered that she was going to buy her the dress with the pink roses in it that she wanted. And her father suggested that they fix her bedroom at home like this one which belonged to the parson's wife, and they brought her flowers and fruit and a book of fairy tales!

When they left Mary realized that she had broken the iron bars which had bound the hearts of her father and mother. And lo! inside she found sunshine, happiness and love such as she had never imagined even in her wildest fancies.

NARRATIVE

had made other plans but thanks to the sergeants' thirst, I did not need them.

Bergdoll paused to light a cigar and continued:

"About 2 o'clock in the afternoon while the sergeants were busy playing the electric piano on the second floor I gave Stecher, my auto driver, a wink and told him to go down and start the motor of the auto. Just then the telephone rang. I told the sergeants I would answer the phone but instead I went out and stepped into the motor car and we drove off.

The sergeants did not know anything about my departure. I understood, for half an hour later, we drove first to Baltimore then to Gettysburg, Pa., thence to Chambersburg, Pittsburg, Wheeling, W. Va., and to Cambridge, Ohio, where we spent the night. The next morning we continued the journey going to Columbus, Dayton and Richmond, Ind., just before we reached Indianapolis we saw a junk dealer with a Ford beside the road. I stopped and bought a pair of Indiana license tags from him. Then we drove into Indianapolis. From there we went to Lafayette, Ind., and thence to Chicago. Arriving at Chicago we made no effort at concealment. We drove openly down Michigan. Leaving Chicago we proceeded to Milwaukee where we spent the night at the St. Charles hotel. The next day we went to Madison, Wis., and from there to Minneapolis and St. Paul where I bot all the newspapers and read with great interest the story of my escape. We spent the night in St. Paul. The next day we drove to St. Vincent, Minn., on the Canadian border.

"As a bluff and to secure information where and how to cross into Canada I asked a fellow by the road where I could get a drink. He replied, 'Just walk out from this side of the road and you will miss the United States custom house.' We got out and waited for about half a mile, when two fellows came along in a Ford and invited us to get in, saying they would give us a lift. They drove us across the border to Emerson, Canada. We spent that night at Emerson. The following day Stecher hired a taxicab to cross into the United States to get our motor car but the U. S. customs officials held him up and turned him back. We had to leave the motor car and our baggage where it was.

"The Canadian immigration official, a gentleman in a bright red coat began to get suspicious and we got a tip that started us on our way again. We started to walk. We must have gone about 17 miles when we reached a town with a French name of Lebel. There we hired a Ford and drove 18 miles to the railroad station. There we caught a train for Winnipeg, arriving in that city on the first day of June.

"In Canada you understand each of the steamship companies has the value; don't worry about your obligations; borrow from us and we'll return them promptly. It's easy. Try it. Coshocton County Finance Co. 109 south Sixth-st.

right to take passport applications. At the offices of the first company we visited we said we were Americans and that we wanted passports to travel in England. We were referred to the United States consul. At the offices of the second steamship company we visited we said we were Canadians, but the clerk demanded to see our army discharge papers. We made some excuse and left. The third we struck—a company with offices on Portage-st.—we were more successful. They promised to get passports and sure enough they did but we had to wait two weeks for them.

Bergdoll showed the correspondent two British passports bearing photographs of himself and Stecher.

Bergdoll's passport was No. 64,792 and contained the following: Name—George Charles Riggs, Esq., a British subject. Age 35.

Occupation—Agriculturist.

Born—At Mill River, Alberta.

Stecher's passport was No. 64,787 and contained this description:

Name—Frank Jeremiah Johnson, Esq., of Winnipeg, a British subject. Age—40.

Occupation—Agriculturist.

Born—New Dayton, Alberta.

Bergdoll carefully put the passports away and continued his narrative:

"From Winnipeg we went to Montreal by rail. There we had the passports vised by the Swedish, Swiss and Belgian consuls.

"From Montreal we went to Quebec from which city we sailed for Europe on the steamship Victorian on July 9, 1920. We landed at Liverpool on July 18. From Liverpool we went to London by train and registered at the Strand Palace hotel. We were there for four days, meantime posing as British subjects (who we were not reported to the police. We visited the German and Dutch consulates in London and on July 23, we crossed the English channel on the steamer Orange Nassau, landing at Flushing, Holland.

"At Flushing we took a train for the German frontier, subsequently going to Oberhausen, Frankfurt, Heidelberg and finally to Eberbach where I have relatives. Everything was quiet until October when an American officer in Berlin, representing Stecher and myself as murderers, secured a telegraphic warrant from the Germans at Berlin to have us arrested.

"We did not know whom we had murdered, nor did we know we had killed any one and, to tell the truth, neither does anybody else. We got word of the warrant and went to Switzerland where we remained for two weeks. Our lawyer succeeded in paying the warrant withdrawn and the German officer who was responsible for its issuance dismissed for making out such a document without sufficient evidence to support it. We then returned to Flushing and have been here ever since.

"The headquarters of the American army of occupation has been sending spies. We talked with some of them. One day told me they must get us before President-elect Harding was inaugurated because Mr. Harding was going to grant amnesty to all political offenders.

"Stecher who had been listening to them, one day told us he was going to knock us on the head and take us to the border. But he did not get himself in our car but drove away on both shoulders and we went back to Coblenz and stayed there for some time. Our lawyer was paid for his services.

"The next day a large meeting in the city of Coblenz was held. There were about 200 eye witnesses. Stecher then was a wedding with the bride's father at first the wedding was just a wedding prank and on the day of Frank Zimmer and George Nord drove up at first we saw Bergdoll's cousin, Randolph

WILL FOHL SUCCEED WHERE SE VEN OTHER MANAGERS FAILED?

The Browns have been struggling in vain since the job entered the American league in 1902 to win a pennant. And so far the gonfalon has eluded their grasp. It hasn't been because the club owners lacked initiative or ambition, however. Eight men have been called upon to try to turn the trick. Lee Fohl, new manager recently signed, is the eighth. His predecessors were:

Freudenberger, who was unarmed, jumped upon the running board and bluffed the chauffeur into stopping. Policemen then arrested the two Americans and four Germans who were with them.

A mob of about 300 persons gathered in front of the jail before the arrival of the prisoners.

Zimmer and the four Germans were attacked and badly beaten.

The mob was especially bitter against the four Germans and there were cries of "traitor". After the prisoners had been lodged in cells the mob became more angry, threatening to storm the building.

Eugene Stecher, chauffeur for Bergdoll and formerly a first sergeant of Co. L. of the Pennsylvania National Guard, undertook to calm the mob. He made a speech with difficulty on account of the shouting.

"Go home quietly," urged Stecher. "The men who have been arrested will get severe punishment. We thank you for the protection you have given foreigners. It is best to disperse quietly."

The mob dispersed. There is a host feeling here toward foreigners for Bergdoll is now accepted as a German and a townsman.

Even the telegraph office hesitated to accept press dispatches until the correspondent was identified both by the police and by Bergdoll.

MODERN SAMSON WRECKS BARROOM

CLEVELAND, Jan. 28 — Plumbers, carpenters, glaziers, all are at work rejuvenating the barroom of the old Parker House, Columbus road, which for fifty years has catered to the thirst of many travellers reaching the city over the Big Four railroad.

A new bar will be built. The long mirror behind the bar will be replaced. A new cigar case will be purchased to replace the old one. Hot and cold water pipes leading from the barroom to guestrooms above will be replaced and numerous holes in the plastering will be filled.

The decision to rejuvenate the historic spot was made by the proprietor after a visit by Kenneth Urquhart, who was formerly an engineer on a lake vessel and a man of powerful physique.

According to statements made by the proprietor and Urquhart to the police, the latter engaged in an argument with the bartender over change from a $20 bill.

The argument did not suit Urquhart, so he got a good grip on the under edge of the big bar and turned it completely over. The cigar case was crushed in his powerful hands like an ordinary person would crush an eggshell. The big mirror crashed to the floor in minute fragments. Then was a simple matter to rend the water pipes from their place on the wall.

The noise of the work of the modern Samson attracted a large crowd, which, however, stood back in awe at his prowess.

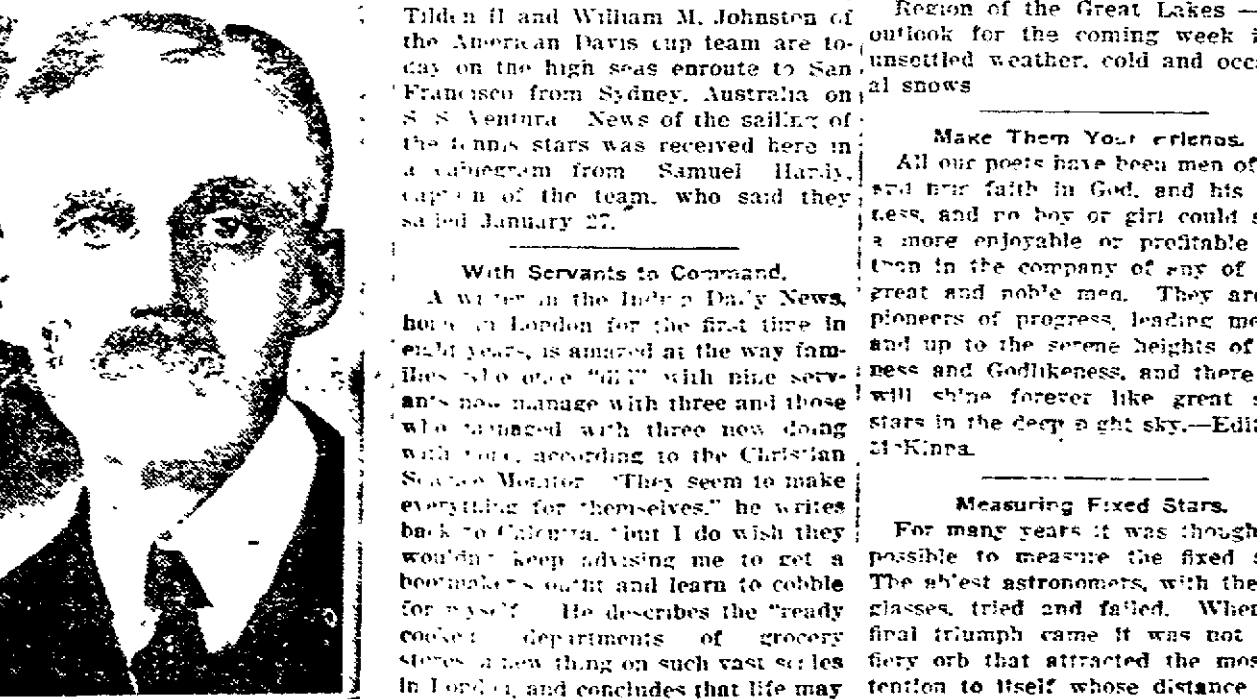

A charge of destroying property was placed against him.

CRUDOLEUM

THE GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR HAIR AND SCALP TROUBLES

Stubborn cases of itching, irritated scalp are easily overcome by Crudoleum. It is a harmless, high grade, light amber petroleum, which has been tried and proven to be especially adapted for removing dandruff and other causes of falling, fading hair. Able authorities have proved this fact by many convincing trials. As time rolls on, the public, after using many different remedies for hair care and ridding the scalp of disease and dandruff, are returning to petroleum, but to the higher, cleaner grade, and not to the thick, dark, muddy looking petroleum which are apt to contain suspended particles of unsanitary substances, lime, free carbon or free sulphur. This accounts for the possibility that a few who have used a common grade of petroleum on the scalp may have done so without much success.

We offer you Crudoleum, believing it is the best grade obtainable for the purposes for which we recommend it; and you get to appreciate it as soon as you use it. It is a harmless application that is rapidly finding its way into the homes of the people. The price is only 35c for a half pint bottle. Get a bottle today at Robertson's Drug Store; this store is authorized to return the purchase price if you are not satisfied after giving Crudoleum a fair trial. The antiseptic, healing powers of Crudoleum and its clean, sparkling appearance and light color is what is making it so popular. Those who have tried it are telling their friends about it. If you are unable to get it from your druggist, send 40c to Wm. M. Simpson Drug Co., Wholesale Druggists, Wilkesburg Station, Pittsburg, Pa.

Income Tax Facts You Should Know

What was your income for 1920?

An answer to this question is required by the Government of every single person (man, woman, or child) in the United States whose net income for last year was $1,000 or more, and of every married person whose net income was $2,000 or more. Heavy penalties are provided by the revenue act for those who fail or "willfully refuse" to comply.

The period for filing returns for the calendar year 1920 is from January 1 to March 15, 1921. The Bureau of Internal Revenue estimates that within this period there will be filed 4,000,000 individual income tax returns. It is certain a percentage of these returns will be incorrect, not because of dishonest intent on the part of the taxpayer but because of error in making out the forms. Erroneous interpretation of the law and regulations governing the collection of the income tax and carelessness cause numerous mistakes, and result in the initial assessment and collection of considerably greater or lesser amounts than are actually due. Frequently these mistakes result in overpayment return of which is made upon a claim for refund. Where, upon verification and audit, underpayments are shown, taxpayers as a rule are prepared promptly to amend their returns and pay the additional tax due. In either event, there is trouble for both the taxpayer and the Government.

SNAPPY TAILLEUR FEATURES VESTEE

This spring tailor is one of the smartest models designed for wear during the coming season. The outfit is faultless in its tailoring. Brown broadcloth with pipings and a waistcoat of castor broadcloth fashions the suit. The long coat with one-button fastening, plain revers, and tucked pockets with steel button trimmings are notable features of the coat.

The making of his return.

Forms will be sent to persons who last year filed returns of 1919 income. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a person of his obligation to file a return and pay the tax on time. Copies may be obtained from offices of collectors of internal revenue, branch offices, and banks. The return, sworn to before a notary, or other person authorized to administer oaths, must be filed with the collector for the district in which the taxpayer lives or has his principal place of business.

BUREAU AIDS TAXPAYERS

To the end that this year such errors may be reduced to a minimum, the Bureau of Internal Revenue is making special effort to inform taxpayers of their rights and duties under the revenue act as interpreted by rulings and regulations of the Treasury Department.

There has been prepared with the official approval of the bureau a series of short articles, of which this is the first, telling the taxpayer how to make out his 1920 return, when and where to file it, and what to do in the event he meets with unusual difficulties. Errors most frequently noted in the audit of previous returns have been divided into classes, each of which will be treated in an informative way. While there is no actual change in the law, there have been issued during the last year many rulings and decisions bearing on its various sections, all of which are of benefit to the taxpayer in the making of a correct return.

1920 EXEMPTIONS

The exemptions for 1920 are $1,000 for single persons, $2,000 for married persons and heads of families, plus $200 for each head of a job ETA $200 for each dependent if under 18 years of age or incapable of self-support. The normal rate is 4 per cent on the first $1,000 of net income above the exemptions and 8 per cent on the remaining net income. This applies to every citizen and resident of the United States. Alien nonresidents receiving income from sources within the United States are taxed to the full 8 per cent on net income from such sources. The surtax rates range from 1 per cent on income between $5,000 and $6,000 to 65 per cent on income in excess of $1,000,000. "Net income" is gross income less certain specified deductions.

MAY PAY IN INSTALLMENTS

The tax, this year as last, may be paid in full at the time of filing the return, or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15. The first installment must accompany the filing of the return. Forms 1040A for incomes of $5,000 and less and 1040 for incomes of more than $5,000 have been revised and contain instructions which if carefully read and followed will be of great aid to the taxpayer in

World's Oldest Harp

What is said to be the oldest harp in the world is preserved at the Louvre museum in Paris. It was found in an Egyptian tomb and is nearly 4,000 years old. Others dating back 3,000 years have been discovered, while the instrument was held in such high regard by the ancient Celtic races that harpers were treated with veneration and distinction, their lands being free and their persons sacred.

English law does not recognize gambling or betting debts, as a general rule, although there have been exceptions.

FACTS ABOUT OPTOMETRY

By OTIS G. MORSE

Number Twelve of the Series

Truly, one learns by doing, and every Optometrist could describe cases that have come under his observation which appear little short of miracles. It is not our purpose in this series of articles to go into any tiresome detail, but rather to discuss broadly and basically the subject of Optometry in its relation to public well-being.

But it should be stated that an error of vision can by straining the eyes, thus setting up a nerve irritation, cause mischief that appears as far as possible removed from the eyes. The explanation is that imperfect eyes impose too great a drain upon the nerve supply of the body, and it is no exaggeration to state that there is almost no end to the reflex symptoms that may be produced.
